Dear Dr Aaron, I have not set up indicators yet. In today session, I caught you saying that Drift had reached very high 200% and what goes up would come down. I fully trust you with a leap of faith and took action. Hence, I looked at the chart and sensed that it would climb down and so I progressively went in and out to take profit along the way by monitoring 1 min and 5 min charts. Without your precious assessment, I would not take action. I was really amazed of how powerful indicators you put together and making sense for trading today. You really shared whole-heartedly and wanting us to excel in life. I will need to put MMT 3.5 and apply it in the trading. You are simply amazing and I cannot imagine coming from a medical doctor that you are the 1% spotted and integrate it extremely well in short TF game plan. Tell me who can do it except Dr Aaron ?

You are already a Giant !

WHEN DO I GET OUT
(Take Profit / Stop Loss)

DIAGNOSE

Is the entry actually valid? And in which direction?

A doctor never prescribes before diagnosing. They look at the evidence first – not the symptom alone. The signal is the symptom. Your job is to diagnose, identify the direction & entry.

Your tool: Exponential Moving Average (EMA). The Heartbeat monitor of the chart

Golden Cross -> Momentum is turning up, market is going up.
Look for a “Long entry”

Death Cross -> Momentum is turning down, market is going down.
Look for a “Short entry”

To Confirm Direction

EMA - Exponential Moving Average

DOSE

How much are you risking?

A doctor prescribes the right dose before the patient takes anything. Too much kills. Too little does nothing. Your Dose is your position size and stop loss – decide before you enter. It is not Just about capital.

DISCHARGED

When are you getting out?

A doctor never admits a patient without a discharge plan already written. You never enter a trade without knowing your exit – win or lose – before you click buy.

Take profit: Nearest resistance. Set it first.

Exit signal: Short-term EMA crosses back below long-term EMA -> exit. No questions.

Stop loss: Below EMA 50. Structural. Not emotional.

Can you do this?

3 Questions before you open your trade:

- 1. Can you diagnose the setup? Identify the direction & entry?*
- 2. Have you dosed your risk?*
- 3. Do you have a discharge plan written?*

2. How To Select Which Coin To Trade

EMA Concept & setting

Term	Definition
EMA (Exponential Moving Average)	A popular technical indicator used in financial markets to analyze price trends and identify potential entry or exit points for trades.
Calculation	Assigns more weight to recent price data, making it more responsive to short-term price changes.
Weighting	The most recent price data points are given more weight, while older data points receive less weight.
Formula	$\text{EMA} = (\text{Close} - \text{EMA}(\text{previous day})) \times \text{Smoothing factor} + \text{EMA}(\text{previous day})$
Smoothing Factor	A smoothing constant that determines the weight given to the current closing price.
Purpose	Identifies the direction of a price trend and potential points of support or resistance.
Crossovers	Crossovers between different EMA periods are often used as signals for potential buying (bullish) or selling (bearish) opportunities.
Timeframes	EMA can be applied to various timeframes, such as daily, weekly, or hourly charts.
Application	Used in technical analysis to assist in making informed trading decisions.

Real example: Sniper Entry

Advance method to find more entry

2 EMA (Basic)

Less entry

5 EMA (Advance)

The Analogy: Trading is like airport flight

like James Bond

Run after the plane.

Ride calmly
like Business Class

lounge. On time board to destination.
